European Nations Are Guilty, Chamberlain Told

TAX CUTS URGED

Britons Cannot Compete With Continent, They Argue

(Reuter's Service)

London, Feb. 16.—That some European countries are deliberately and systematically inflating the exchange against themselves in order to undersell competitors and get their industries going before meeting their indebtedness, was a point urged by Sir Peter Rylands, as a member of an influential industrial deputation to Mr. Austen Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, today. The object of the deputation was to urge the alleviation or postponement of the taxation of industries during the present depression. It was pointed out that Continental prices defied British competition. Moreover, there was great difficulty in obtaining remittances from certain countries.

Mr. Chamberlain, speaking in reply, said the factors mentioned were beyond the Government's control. The difficulty in the case of markets like India and China did not concern remittances and exchange, but was a question of the impossibility of disposing there of goods ordered in Great Britain.

The Chancellor added that it was impossible at present to reduce the income tax.

London Bankers To Aid Czecho-Slovaks

(Reuter's Service)

London, Feb. 16.—It is reported that two British syndicates have arranged with certain Midland bankers and a firm of Liverpool cotton-brokers for an advance of £400,000 towards a scheme for the exportation of raw cotton to Czecho-Slovakia, and for the re-exportation of the yarns and manufactured goods to Great Britain and the Dominions. The enterprise is fully guaranteed by the Czecho-Slovakian Government and the Czech bank combine.

Further Price Increases Help Piece Goods Men

Higher prices—better even than at the Kungping auction earlier in the week—prevailed at the Yuenfong auction yesterday for cotton goods and fancies and the piece goods dealers believe that the market will continue on its upward trend. Foreign merchants say that a demand has been created because of the long period before and after the Chinese New Year when business has been at a stand still.

INJUNCTION GIVEN IN WU FUND CASE

British Court Extends Restraining Order On Southern Party Moneys

Judge Skinner Turner in the British Supreme Court yesterday granted the injunction asked by the Peking Government against the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank to restrain disposition of funds held in the name of Dr. Wu Ting-fang, pending the outcome of a suit which has been filed in the Shanghai City Court. The Court stated that liberty to apply at any time would be given.

Mr. Lipson Ward appeared, in the absence of Mr. MacLeod, with Mr. Ziar, for the plaintiffs and Mr. D. McNeill represented the defendants. The Court made the point that it had never been suggested that notice to a British bank of an injunction granted against its customers by any other than a British court would affect that bank or prevent it from honoring the customer's drafts.

U.S. PLANNING TO TURN EUROPEAN DEBTS INTO CASH

Lamont And Harding Discuss President - Elect's Proposal

Banker Says American Delegates Entered No Agreements

(Reuter's Service)

St. Augustine, Florida, Feb. 16.—Mr. Thomas W. Lamont, who was a member of the American peace delegation to Paris, and is also a member of the firm of J. P. Morgan and Company, the principal financial agents in the United States of the debtor Powers, has been visiting President-Elect Harding here.

He was able to give Mr. Harding the unqualified assurance that no agreement or secret understanding whatsoever had been made at Versailles as regards either whole or partial cancellation of the Allied debts. The American delegates, he said, without exception vigorously opposed any such suggestion.

It is further understood that Mr. Lamont and Mr. Harding discussed the latter's proposal to convert the debts into negotiable paper.

PEARL HARBOR TO BE ENLARGED

Will Accommodate Entire Pacific Fleet, Says Admiral

(Reuter's Service)

Honolulu, Feb. 16.—Plans for the expansion of Pearl Harbor, the United States naval-base in Hawaii, with a view to enabling it to supply and accommodate the entire Pacific Fleet, are now under way, according to Rear-Admiral Shoemaker, who has just arrived to take over command in place of Rear-Admiral Fletcher, who has been transferred to the American Naval Commission, at Rio de Janeiro.

Admiral Shoemaker says that these plans should not be interpreted to give the impression that the United States expects trouble, but as routine development, tending to greater efficiency and fulfilling the original purposes of the station. Part of the Pacific Fleet will very soon be based on Hawaii, he adds.

The great singer bade farewell to the members of the Metropolitan Opera Company at his bedside last night but rallied later.

Signor Caruso has had a series of illnesses since early in December. First of all, he was injured by the fall of a stage pillar. Then he strained his side through slipping and falling on the stage. Afterwards, he burst a small bloodvessel in the throat while singing at Brooklyn. He recovered from this and thereafter had successive attacks of lumbago and pleurisy, the latter necessitating two operations.

Says U.S.-British Accord Will Avert War With Japanese

Chicago Tribune Fears Anti-English Policy Will Lead To Conflict

(Reuter's Service)

Chicago, Feb. 16.—The Chicago Tribune, in a leading article on the Japanese rejection of the "naval holiday" project, says: "Either Great Britain or America will have to force a change in Japanese policy, or America will take part in an Asiatic war. Japan's purpose is to control the Pacific, if no longer than to enable Japanese Imperialism to achieve its aims."

The Tribune urges an understanding between Great Britain and America, "whereupon," it says, "Japan will come off her high horse; but if America pursues an anti-British policy, Japan will ride that horse into a war."

London, Feb. 17.—The Morning Post, in a leading article on the question of British, Japanese and American armaments, declares that the situation in the Far East is so complicated by the conditions in China that there can be no durable peace unil the potential dangers are removed.

Tribute Paid Dean Walker At Holy Trinity Meeting

High tribute to Dean Walker for his long record of service and achievement at the Holy Trinity Cathedral was paid yesterday at the annual meeting of the congregation at which reports and statements of accounts for the year were presented.

"The year, "says the report of thte Dean and Wardens," has seen Dean Walker retire from the office he has held for seventeen years. His presence is greatly missed. During these years the work in connection with the Cathedral has made much progress, and to him must be given the honor of bringing it about.

"First and foremost the new trust deed, under which the Cathedral operates, owes its inception to him, and through it the Cathedral has developed from the status of a "proprietary chapel" into a properly constituted center of corporate life and worship.

"Dean Walker was responsible for many improvements in the Cathedral, its services under him have been beautified and its appointments much enriched. The Memorial Chapel and the New Organ were maongst his last efforts in his direction, and while he was unable to see the Chapel completed and the Oragn built, he is still helping in England with the final arrangements of specifications and contracts.

"Both Chapel and Organ will require considerable additional funds in the near future, but we feel sure when we are in a position to make the appeal, the name of Dean Walker will be no little assistance in helping us to obtain them and thus complete his last good work upon which he had set his heart."

REPORTS ADOPTED

Following the opening of the meeting which was held at the Church House at 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon, Sir Everard Fraser was elected Chairman and Mr. E. L. Allen, Secretary. In doing so, he affirms that he does not desire to deal with politics, nor in any way to alter the Peace Treaty, but he points out that the kroner which a few months ago stood at six hundred to the pound sterling is now at nearly three thousand, and the budget deficit which was then seven thousand million kroner is now forty thousand million.

CHILDS DIES OF CRASH INJURIES, INQUEST OPENS

Ex-service Men Planning Funeral Of Cycle Smash Victim

Mr. Albert E. Childs, one of the trio of victims of the motorcycle crash on Bubbling Well Road last Friday night, and driver of the machine, succumbed to his injuries yesterday morning at the Shanghai General Hospital where he has been under treatment since the accident.

An outline of the manner in which the accident occurred was given yesterday afternoon in the court of United States Commissioner Schuhl. The inquest which was begun yesterday before the Commissioner is to be resumed this afternoon. Chief Inspector W. R. Kinipple appeared for the Settlement Police at the hearing and in a statement to the court said that Mr. Childs with Messrs. J. J. Maloney and E. C. Pinkham were driving west with their motorcycle along Bubbling Well Road. Childs was piloting the machine, Maloney occupied the seat behind him and Pinkham was riding in the attached side car.

At the bend near Gordon road Inspector Kinipple said the police had been informed that the motorcycle had swerved from the approach of an automobile and then, under the momentum it had gained, was unable to negotiate the turn in the road. The machine, he said, had struck first against a tree support and had caromed off into a fire hydrant. The Inspector said the testimony of witnesses who had been questioned indicated that the machine was traveling not less than 30 miles an hour.

Mr. J. J. Maloney, one of the victims of the accident, who escaped with nothing more serious than a shaking up, also testified. His story in substance followed the statement of Inspector Kinipple, but one point of difference was Maloney's estimate that the motorcycle was traveling only about 12 miles an hour immediately before the crash.

In the statement he made Inspector Kinipple had said that the automobile from which the motor car swerved was the property of Mr. D. McColl, Manager of the Tramway Company and that Mr. McColl and his daughter were riding in it when the accident occurred.

The jury before which the case is being heard is composed of Messrs. N. A. Thompson, Oscar G. Steen, W. W. Clements, Joseph Eichwald, T. C. Britton and J. J. Keegan.

The time when the funeral of Mr. Childs will be held has not been announced. As he was an ex-service man members of the Shanghai post of the American Legion are interesting themselves in the tragedy with a view to giving aid by getting in touch with Mr. Childs' relatives.

Council Firm In Stand Against Acceptance Of Chinese Committeemen

Denies Misconception Of Ratepayers' Association Rules And Insists Advisors Must Be Unhampered

Reiterating its desire for the speedy formation and subsequent assistance of the Chinese Advisory Committee but firmly declining to recede from the stand taken in the matter of the five men who have been nominated under the regulations of the recently formd Chinese Ratepayers' Association, the Municipal Council yesterday replied to the letter transmitted through the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce and published in yesterdays' issue.

The Council states that there has been no mistranslation or misconception of the regulations to which it has taken exception and insists that the advisory body, which was authorised at the last ratepayers' meeting, come to it entirely unfettered and unhampered by the supervision or control of any organisation. It wished the point made absolutely clear that the electoral body will confine itself strictly to the matter of nomination and will not attempt to direct the activities of the committee which it creates. The Municipality in its stand, it is understood, makes no objection to the conferring of the advisory committee with representative organisations on important subjects, but does not wish the committee to be bound to any such procedure.

The Council's reply to the letter published yesterday follows:

February 17, 1921.

"Sir.—I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of January 25, forwarding copy of a letter dated January 24, signed by Dr. C. T. Wang, on behalf of the Chinese Ratepayers Association, commenting on the Council's letter to you of January 13, in reference to the nominations for membership of the Chinese Advisory Committee to the Council, which were submitted in your letter of November 24, 1920.

WILL NOT RECEDE

"In reply you may assure Dr. Wang that there has been no mistranslation or misconstruction by the Council of Regulation 6 of the Chinese Ratepayers Association as he suggests; that the Council is not prepared under any circumstances to recede from the stand taken in my letter to you of January 13, which in effect is that the Body, created to provide the necessary machinery for selecting candidates for nomination to the Advisory Committee, must confine itself to this function; and that therefore unless and until the names of five nominees who are not bound by those regulations to which objection has been taken, are submitted on behalf of the Chinese community, the Council cannot, it is regretted, proceed with the appointment of such Committee.

"It may perhaps assist you to appreciate the position still more clearly if you ask yourself how the Council can be expected to accept or repose any trust or confidence in five nominees whoever they may be, when those who put forward their names for nomination are not prepared on their part to trust them, but must needs seek to place them under a controlling or supervisory body of no less than twenty-two other persons? The Council does not seek an Advisory Committee of twenty-seven, but an Advisory Committee of five.

NO WISH TO OBSTRUCT

"In conclusion I am directed to emphasise that there is no desire on the Council's part to obstruct the appointment of the Committee, as appears to have gained impression amongst certain sections of the Chinese Community. On the contrary the sooner the Committee takes office and is able to assis with its advice on matters effecting the Chinese Community, the better will it please the Council, which must however insist that the Committee be appointed in conformity with the conditions laid down by the Council and approved by the Ratepayers.

"I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

N. O. Liddell.

"The Chairman, Chinese General Chamber of Commerce."

The World adds that the State Department has sent a communication to the British Foreign Office on the subject.

Will Brook No Interference With Plans, They Announce

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Vladivostok, Feb. 17.—The Vladivostok Assembly is composed as follows: Communists 120, Social Democrats 20, Social Revolutionaries 26, Cadets 14, Peasants 150, with a number of Buriats and Koreans. The Peasants, led by M. Rumyantsev, have joined forces with the Communists, only thirty remaining independent.

Thus at the second sitting of the Assembly amendments proposed by the other parties were outvoted by the Communists. The latter openly state they will not tolerate interference with their plans.

In view of the failure of the Vladivostok Government to carry out the orders of Chita regarding financial matters, it has again received an order prohibiting it from drawing funds from the State Bank without Chita's permission. Paying no attention to these instructions, the governing body at Vladivostok are preparing to draw out the last of the gold reserve.

The findings will have much of interest to foreigners employed in business houses here as municipal employes have contended that they are entitled to the same considerations as foreigners working for commercial firms.

COTTON MARKET IN N.Y. STRONGER

Surplus May Cause Planters To Cut Down Acreage

(Reuter's Service)

New York, Jan. 14 (by mail).—Trade is slowly improving in raw silk and in other silk markets, but the gains are slow.

Cotton yarn markets are much steadier and slightly higher. Buying has been large enough to clean up many stocks, and mills have been able in a number of instances to secure business to keep them busy for 60 to 90 days. This has been brought about in part by the advance in raw cotton, but is really due to the general increase in buying in cotton goods lines, following the very drastic price revisions announced at the beginning of the year. Knitters are just beginning to get larger orders, and are buying yarns very moderately.

The question of reduced cotton acreage is daily becoming more important as a market factor. Within a few weeks active preparations for the new crop will be in full swing, and with a large part of the last crop still on the farm or sold at ruinous prices, farmers will not require much argument to reduce their acreage this year.

The Secretary of the American Cotton Association declares thousands of pledges have been signed in South Carolina to cut the production of cotton in half for 1921. Arguing for such reduction, he says the present supplies of raw cotton in the country are far in excess of the needs of present restricted consumption by the mills. Moreover, the farmers are holding millions of bales of the 1920 crop, and the local rural banks have strained their resources to carry the loans placed against the cotton now being held. Supply merchants and fertiliser dealers are carrying unpaid obligations on their books for supplies furnished in 1920, and their ability to continue credit facilities to grow additional supplies of cotton in 1921 is badly crippled. This condition, he points out, prevails throughout the entire cotton belt, and unless very materially improved in the near future, a normal planting of cotton will be impossible.

Help Promised To British Unemployed

London, Feb. 16.—In the House of Commons today, Mr. J. R. Clynes, Chairman of the Labor Party, moved an amendment to the Address, expressing regret that the Government had failed to fulfil its premises to introudce legislation for the relief of unemployed, the numbers of whom (it was asserted) had trebled in the past four months.

Dr. Macnamara, Minister of Labor, replied that the Government intended to enforce its unemployment policy to carry out its pledges to ex-service men, and would shortly increase the unemployment benefits.

Hunan General's Forces Defeated

(China Press Correspondence)

Hankow, Feb. 13.—The recent clash in Kiangsi province between Military Governor Chen Kwang-yuan and General Chang Tsung-chang formerly under Chang Ching-yao of Hunan has been ended in the total collapse of the latter's forces.

The casualties on Chang's side were over seven hundred, and although his forces exceeded 8,000 and he has ample supplies of ammunitions of war, he was compelled to yield because his men were unfaithful.

General Chen Kwang-yuan is disbanding Chang's troops now by giving them special allowances ranging from fifty to five dollars in order to send them north. Most of these men are from Shantung province.

Senate To Take Up Immigration Bill

Measure Proposes To Restrict Newcomers To Five Percent Basis

(U.S. Navy Radio Through Reuter)

New York, Feb. 16.—The Senate Committee on Immigration having rejected the House bill prohibiting all immigration for one year, today sent an alternative measure to the Senate, limiting immigration to five percent of the number of natives of each country now resident in the United States.

The bill, if passed in time, which is unlikely, would come into operation on April 1, and would cease on June 30 next year.

The Committee bases its proposals on the argument that, while the prohibition of immigration would only be warranted by an emergency, such as does not exist, yet the war has created conditions which demand some restriction until their full significance is apparent. A great increase in the numbers seeking admission is anticipated, not from northern and western Europe, which has been sending a steady but moderate stream of those who settle best, but from southern and eastern Europe, whence the immigrants largely consist of single men, who crowd into the cities and do not readily assimilate.

The Committee believes that it is the latter type of immigration that legislation ultimately should chiefly prohibit. The measure naturally does not apply to Asiatic immigration, and excludes Canada and South America from its scope.

Peter Kropotkin, Anarchist, Dead

Russian Radical Was Well Known For Revolutionary Books

(Dalta New Agency)

Moscow, Feb. 10.—Peter Kropotkin died yesterday at 3:10 a.m. Warm tributes are paid to him by the papers here which appear in black-bordered front pages devoted to the biographical sketches of the famous revolutionist and scientist. The Izvestia (Official Gazette) says in conclusion that: "Kropotkin's anarchistic views and his character, which fitted him better for literary than practical work, and also his failing health prevented him from playing any part in the Russian revolution. As far as was compatible with his anarchistic tendencies, his attitude was favorable towards the Russian Communist Party which, according to his words, has proved capable of bringing about a social revolution and the emancipation of the working class.

Kropotkin, born in November 26, 1842 of royal descent, completed his education in the Cadets Corps with distinction. He refused to enlist in the Tsar's Guard and joined the Siberian Cossacks as an officer. Convinced that no reform was possible under Tsar's rule and owing to revolutionary influences, he became a democrat and went abroad in 1913. He entered into close relations with the Swiss Internationalist leaders and eventually became an ardent Anarchist. After his return to Russia, he tried to spread the anarchist movement.

Among his books are: "Bread and Freedom," "France's Field," "Revolutionaries' Notes," and "History of France."

Boone University Gets Gifts From U.S.

New York Library Sends Fine Collection Of Books

(China Press Correspondence)

Hankow, Feb. 12.—The authorities of Boone University, Wuchang, received in January two gifts from America. One is a box of books from Doctor Anderson, Librarian of the New York Public Library, and its staff, and the other is a letter from Miss Olivia E. Phelps Stokes of New York City containing a check for two thousand gold dollars.

The box from the New York Public Library contained about one hundred and fifty volumes, most of which are latest books in history, science, sociology, literature, biography, etc.

The gift of two thousand gold dollars from Miss Stokes is in addition to a gift of one thousand dollars from the same donor a few weeks previous, and is for the enlargement of Stokes Hall given in memory of her sister Caroline Phelps Stokes. With this generous gift in hand, the University still needs another five thousand dollars for the first story of the additional building so that it may be completed for the anniversary celebrations of Boone University in next October.

Mr. Howe of the University staff has drawn a most attractive plan for the enlargement. Stokes Hall where the University Library is housed will have a seating capacity for four hundred more people, so that all who come to the public lectures given under the auspices of the Library can be accommodated.

Peking, Feb. 11.—In view of the importance of aeronautics both in modern warfare and in commercial enterprises the Government is devoting much energy to the expansion and improvement of the Aviation Bureau. Preliminary preparations for the fixing of routes and establishment of stations have been completed.

At the second regular meeting of the Cabinet last week the regulations governing the internal organisation of this department were brought up for discussion and unanimously passed.

Mr. P. Peebles was nominated for the post of Warden for the trustees by Mr. Edney Page and was elected and Dean Symons nominated Mr. A. C. Clear as Warden for the Dean.

WORK PROGRESSING

In a report on the Memorial Chapel and new organ funds Mr. E. Page informed the meeting that progress is being made with the chapel work and that the oak panels will be ready within a few months. Other work, Mr. Page said, is being done in England and due to amendment of design, the date of its completion is uncertain, but it will probably be next year.

On the subject of the new organ Mr. Page said more money will be needed later, adding that it will be asked for when a definite date of completion can be given. Labor troubles, he said, were causing the delay, but he added that the new organ probably will be installed in 1923.

There are no springs to break. 12. The design of the escapement reduces friction to the minimum. 13. The clock itself is its own driving power. 14. It shows at a glance when it needs winding. 15. The driving force is constant. 16. The design lends itself to new varieties of artistic treatment. 17. It requires no oil. 18. Educational Association Holds Its Final Session

Report Made By Committee On Government Recognition Of Middle Schools—New Officers Named

At the closing session of the East China Educational Association Thursday morning the following report was made by the Committee on Government Recognition of Middle Schools.

A. 1. The previous regulations providing for registration of institutions of college grade specified that there should be no religious teaching. This clause concerning religion has now been deleted.

2. New regulations have been put forth concerning the registration of private schools of collegiate grade. These regulations do not go into detail and are conceived along broad lines.

3. The University of Nanking and Peking University have already made application for recognition by the Government under the new regulations, and assurance has been given by the Ministry and announcement made in the Chinese press that such recognition was about to be given.

4. The Ministry of Education has stated that the Ministry is prepared to receive further applications and to provide for inspection of such colleges as apply, with a view of extending recognition to them in the near future.

B. The Committee desires to lay special emphasis upon the recommendations of Dr. H. C. Ren on behalf of the Ministry of Education, as follows:

That Mission schools try to connect themselves with the Chinese educational world through such agencies as Chinese schools and local educational associations.

BANQUET IS GIVEN

In order to show appreciation of the coming of Dr. Ren as the special representative of the Ministry of Education a number of prominent Christian educational leaders gave a banquet in his honor. The following were present: Dr. F. J. White, President of the East China Educational Association and of Shanghai Baptist College; Dr. J. E. Williams, Vice President of Nanking University; Dr. P. W. Kuo, President of Government Teachers College, Nanking; Dr. Jno. W. Cline, President of Soochow University; Rev. W. P. Roberts, Acting President of St. Johns University; H. S. Redfern, Esq., President of Ningpo Methodist College; Dr. F. D. Gamewell, Gen. Sec'y China Christian Educational Association; Dr. C. C. Chen, Acting Vice Pres. Shanghai Baptist College; Dr. E. L. Mattox, Hangchow Christian College; Prof. W. T. Tao, Dean Government Teachers College, Nanking; Dr. C. Yang, Dean of Commercial Dept. Government Teachers College; Dr. Fong Sec. Editor English Dept. Commercial Press; Rev. E. H. Cressy, President of the Association of Christian Middle Schools of East China.

NEW INFORMATION

A mass of valuable information hitherto not available for the English speaking public was presented to the Association in an address by Prof. W. T. Tao, M.A., of Government Teachers College Nanking, on "The Administrative System of Chinese Education." The following are some of the interesting facts:

China spends annually on her Ministry of Education $480,000, or $1,600 per capita, as there are about three hundred members in the Ministry Council. The Minister of Education is a cabinet officer, and his term of office has been very short, averaging about two ministers to the year for the past nine years. About one fourth of these have been educators of experience and one third returned students. The Vice Minister seems to have held office on the average about twice as long as the Minister, there having been nine in the past nine years. But the staff, the men who really do the work, seem to be a fairly stable body of men.

The average age of the individual in the staff is thirty-seven years. The staff in each province serves two masters, sometimes being subject to the Civil Governor, and sometimes to the Minister of Education. The whole of China is divided into ninety-four districts for the purpose of inspection.

Provinces have on the average three provincial commissioners of education receiving salaries of from $400 to $600 per month. Provinces have from one to six inspectors.

A study of these higher officers of education shows a very high percentage of professionally trained men, 75 percent of the division heads having had a college education and 33 percent a Teachers College training. Of their assistants 68 percent have a college education and 20 percent normal training, while 62 percent of the provincial inspectors have had a higher education and 22 percent have had normal training.

When it comes to the county Boards for Promoting Education things are not so well organised. The average expenditure per county for educational administration is $7,000 and of the men in charge, called Promotors of Education, nearly half have had an education of middle school grade or above.

The districts have superintendents who are very poorly paid, the average provision for travel being about $80. City Superintendents receive pitiful salaries as compared with men of like position in foreign countries, but Canton has recently done a thing hitherto unheard of in China—employed a superintendent of city schools at a salary of $400 per month.

THE EVASIVE GAMBLER

There were seven exits to a gambling establishment at 1771 Si Gee Bai Ka, but the management evidently regarded the number as inadequate for when Chief Inspector Vaughan and Detective Sergeant Kilkenny visited the place to get the lay of the land previous to a raid they found masons constructing still other doors. Four men were arrested but the police were too early for the gambling and the prisoners were discharged with a caution yesterday. A day previous D. S. Kilkenny conducted a raid on another place at 86 Si Gee Bai Ka. In days before this establishment boasted six exits which by reason of some eight raids in the past two years had become familiar to the police. On the last occasion however the raiders discovered that a seventh entrance had been added and through this the gamblers made their get-away. The proprietor of the establishment was sentenced to two months' imprisonment.

Our relations with Moscow are only those of two good neighbors."

The Man Who Envied the Show Window of a Certain Furniture Store

A friend of ours was attracted by a set of furniture displayed in the show window of a certain store. The articles were so alluring that he simply had to buy them. But when he had them in his own parlor, more than half of the original "look" was gone!

"Well, what was there in that show window, any way?", said he, scratching his head.

A trip to that window he lifted his head. once more. Incidentally "Ah! There's the secret!"

At once he copied the the store's secret in his own parlor. It was successful, of course.

The answer was simple. He saw the store's show window was beautifully lighted by a Veluria decorative bowl, and he put the same thing in his own parlor.

LACK OF FUNDS FORCED TUCHUN TO VACATE POST

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, Feb. 14.—The report that Tuchun Tang Chi-yao of Yunnan deserted his post on the 9th instant has been confirmed by a message from Yunnanfu to the French Minister here. It is further understood that failure to pay military expenses is the main cause of his departure. Toward the end of the Lunar year several divisional commanders under the lead of Generals Yi Chuan and Koo Ping-tseng, applied to Tang for nine million dollars to pay the military arrears which Tang had promised to pay before Year Year's Day. Tang's plan for the hypothecation of Yunnan mines for foreign loans failed and an appeal to Dr. Sun Yat-sen for financial assistance was fruitless.

Consequently, Yi Chuan's and Koo Ping-tseng's troops demonstrated against Tang. Being without resource, Tang announced his abandonment of the Tuchunship in favor of Koo Ping-tseng. He withdrew on the 9th to Mengtze, on the Annam-Kwelchow border, accompanied by Liu Shen-shih, ex-Tuchun of Kwelchow.

If no opportunity for his restoration appears, he may go to Japan. At present General Koo holds the reins of the Yunnan Provincial Government and has announced a future popular election for the Civil Governorship. It is expected that the future Yunnan leaders will pursue a policy of opportunistic autonomy similar to that of Hunan and Szechuen. The hopes of the southern federalists who hoped to create a united government south of the Yangtsze in opposition to Peking are much thwarted by this change, but the "Kwangtung-for-Kwangtungites" party under Chen Chung-ming's leadership is said to be really pleased at the development, which will quash the empire-building plans of Dr. Sun Yat-sen. These people feel that there is enough scope for the activities of various leaders each in his own province.

Peking is said to regard the situaton without alarm, for although the government here has repeatedly given out that it was nearing terms with Tang Chi-yao it realised the impossibility of ever really holding him.

The downfall of Tang began with his defeat in Szechuen at the hands of Hsiung Ke-wu and Liu Tswen-hou who united against him.

Reds Had Big Fund For Work In Paris

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Feb. 16.—An examination of the persons arrested in connection with the Communist movement in France has established the fact that the alleged Bolshevist agent, Abramovitch, had a deposit of two hundred thousand francs in an American bank in Paris, the money coming from a German bank.

A number of further arrests have been made in all parts of France, also in Algeria and Tunis.

A man named John Minkin, who was arrested at Brest, was found to possess a passport signed by the representative of the Soviet Government at Sydney, Australia.

The police have discovered large quantities of stolen explosives in the house of four men known to be Bolshevist sympathisers.

U.S. Trade Crisis Past, Says Banker

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, Feb. 16.—Mr. W. P. Harding, Governor of the Federal Reserve Board, in his annual report, expresses the opinion that the United States has passed the crisis of post-war readjustment, and he contemplates the future with confidence.

He says America is at present finding that her exports are only partly paid for by a large portion of her world trade, and these will soon have to be cut down to the most vital essentials unless Europe's normal credit and buying power are restored. Mr. Harding advocates the creation of a corporation to arrange long-term credits.

BASEBALL CLUB HOLDS ANNUAL SESSION TODAY

Meeting To Be Held At Carlton Cafe This Afternoon At 5:15 O'Clock

IMPORTANT BUSINESS UP

Organisation To Elect Committee, Hear Reports And Make Plans For Season

The annual meeting of the Baseball Club is to be held at the Carlton Cafe this afternoon at 5:15 o'clock and a large attendance is urged because of the important business to be discussed. Officers are to be elected, reports of outgoing committees heard and plans made for the coming season. In addition it is highly probable that the Baseball Club will take action on the suggestion that an organisation be formed to govern all phases of American athletic activity.

Ray Bunn will preside at today's meeting as Dr. N. L. Downs is in the United States. Johnny Potter and Bills are the two other committee men in the city. Dr. Downs will not take the presidential berth again and Potter claims that he will be unable to give the necessary time to the secretarial work. Bill was formerly secretary of the Club and may be prevailed upon to take the berth again. In all probability a team manager will be appointed or elected today and the new position will carry with it many of the duties formerly ascribed to the secretary.

MANAGER WOULD HELP

The move is a wise one. The team manager can secure and look after equipment, grounds, games, advertising and sundry other matters which are now handled by the secretary.

Johnny Knowlan has been mentioned for the berth and should be supported. He did great work in connection with the American football game which realised nearly $450 for the Women's Famine Relief Society and would be a valuable aid to the secretary. The latter would have more time for his actual accounts.

In addition to the election of officers the Club must make plans for a membership campaign which should be started by March first. With the subscription fixed at ten dollars there in no reason in the world why the club can not have $3,000 in the treasury a month before the season starts. The membership campaign last year was a success but was not pushed early enough. The club should have at least 700 members this season.

THAT ORGANISATION

Then there is the question of this American sports organisation to look after football, baseball, track, tennis, soccer and basketball, the last named to be governed through the Shanghai Amateur Basketball League.

American football should be an annual proposition only three or four games could be played instead of the usual one. Soccer got away to a pretty good start this season and local Americans must be represented in the open track and field meet to be held in conjunction with the Far Eastern championships.

If the Baseball Club takes the proper steps, every American athlete will be known. And he will thus have incentive to compete. Men like Moore, former Cornell weight man and junior national shot put champion not too long ago, will be encouraged to pull on the spiked shoes and throw the 16-pound ball around a bit. Charley Glauque formerly tossed weights at Oberlin, there are a dozen middle distance men in Shanghai and others scattered about China teaching, in business and in missionary work.

As the parent organisation the Baseball Club has much opportunity to help Americans in all sorts of athletics and the matter should be discussed at the meeting today. And a large number should be on hand to enter into the discussion.

LUSITANO CLUB MEETING

The annual meeting of the Lusitano Club was held at the Club house on Wednesday night and was attended by a large number of members. Mr. J. J. de Souza presided and the accounts were passed unanimously.

Messrs. C. M. P. Remedios and C. F. Ozorio were re-elected as auditors and Messrs. J. J. Souza, C. E. L. Ozorio, L. A. M. Ozorio, L. F. Lopes, S. del Rivero, J. M. M. Britto and P. J. Marques were re elected as the Committee. Messrs. J. C. Britto, J. P. Campos and A. S. Braga are new members of the Committee.

A vote of thanks to the Committee terminated the meeting.

'Y' STARTS CLASS; TRAINS ATHLETES AS CHINA COACHES

Instruction For Interested Foreigners Next Week; Men Needed

In order to stimulate interest in the Far Eastern Games, and also to help men giving time to the training and coaching of athletes, the Physical Department of the National Committee of the Young Men's Christian Association has volunteered to conduct two classes —one for Chinese and one for foreigners at the Shanghai Young Men's Christian Association.

During the present week more than 15 Chinese have been taking instruction under Mr. C. H. McCloy, the work including the theory, demonstration, and practice of sprints, jumps, weight and general athletic events.

This part of the class will close its work, on Saturday, and next week the work will be repeated for foreigners. The course is given gratis except for a nominal fee of $2.50, which merely covers typewriting and other clerical costs, and as large a number of men as possible is desired.

Anyone wishing information can secure it from Mr. C. H. McCloy at the Shanghai Y.M.C.A., or from Dr. J. H. Gray, honorary secretary of the Contest Committee, Far Eastern Athletic Association, 20 Museum Road, 'Phone Central 5287.

Harriers Men Out Tomorrow

Tomorrow the members will have a training run across country. The start will be from the American School of 3 p.m. and will be over a selected course of about five miles. There will be both fast and slow packs, the Club captain being in charge of the former with the vice captain in charge of the latter.

St. Xavier's Senior Team Wins Carlill Football Cup; Defeats Public School, 5-4

Crack Eleven Has Not Lost A Game This Season; S.P.C. Midgets Win And Juniors Play Tie Game

On Wednesday afternoon the Public School Senior, Junior and Midget elevens were at home to the St. Xavier's College in the Schools' League Championship.

SENIORS

With the wind in their favor the Public School were pressing during most of the first half. Early in the game Johansson opened the scoring for the School, and Cumine soon added a second.

The St. Xavier boys, however, were not to be frightened by the lead against them, and following some pretty combination on their left wing, the ball was transferred to the right where Jesu scored. The Public School returned to the attack and from a delightful center by Madar, Remedios J. headed neatly into goal.

In the second half the St. Xavier eleven soon showed that they intended to take full advantage of the favorable wind. Within the first five minutes of this half they added two more goals to their score through Marcel. The score now stood at three all, and players and supporters on both sides realised that the harder working team would have the better chance of winning.

There was some strenuous play for twenty minutes, at which stage the St. Xavier eleven scored a fourth goal through White thus establishing a lead.

The Public School were now on their mettle, and following a bombardment of the St. Xavier's goal, Johansson brought the score again level. Within ten minutes of time Cumine succeeded in netting again for the School, following which goal there was no further score.

St. Xavier's College	4

The Public School Seniors have an enviable record in their matches against other Schools this year, having won every match played. Their victory on Wednesday has now placed it beyond doubt that they will hold again this year the Carlill Cup, although actually they still have one more match to play in this League.

JUNIORS

Play was largely in favor of the Public School during the first half, and following a hot attack on the St. Xavier's goal Siemsen scored from a free kick. The brilliant play of Jones, at center half for the St. Xavier's eleven, robbed the Public School attack of much of its sting, and no further score resulted in the first half.

In the second half the St. Xavier eleven had the advantage of the wing and eventually scored from a corner, a penalty having previously been brilliantly saved by Larsen, the Public School goalkeeper.

Both sides played vigorous football in an attempt to win but there was no additional score up to the call of time.

MIDGETS

Both sides were evenly matched and a very promising display was given by the youngsters. The Public School scored twice in the first half through Sinclair and Fabian, while in the second half the St. Xavier College scored through Holmes.

WATSON WINS TIENTSIN HUNT BY SHORT HEAD

Rides Honor Bright To Victory After Great Race For Flags

COMMONS IS SECOND

Todd, Jorg, Arden And Kock On Card; Finish In Bunch

Brilliantly ridden, Honor Bright, C. M. Watson up, beat Sui Pien, Commons in the saddle by a short head in the ninth hunt at Tientsin last Sunday afternoon. The field finished in a bunch, three lengths covering the first six, with the other two close up behind.

The finish was as pretty racing as could be wished for by even the most blase horseman. Commons, on his "Go-As-You-Please" dun, seemed to have the hunt by many lengths, two furlongs from the flags, but the Master brought his grey flier along with a fine burst of speed, drawing level at the first of the last three jumps, 100 yards from home.

Clearing the remaining two ditches with remarkable ease Honor Bright and Sui Pien, possibly the best two cross country ponies in North China, ran neck and neck to what appeared must be a dead heat, but Watson's mount, well urged, forged ahead in the last three strides to win by a short head. Todd, on Henry, successfully disputed with Jorg for third place, and Arden and Kock decided positions by a bare half length.

BEST PONIES OUT

Keith Watson, mounted on Shirrell's Neuralgia, led the field to the last check where he made a mistake and allowed them to catch up and pass him. The hunt, in spite of a high wind which scattered paper, was voted pleasant. Mr. Feeney, the architect, placed the scent over nice running country for about four and a half miles with three checks.

The pack started on the south side of Arsenal road and finished

BERLIN ROYALISTS FORCED INTO OPEN

Recent Debate In Reichstag A Violent Clash Between Monarchists And Republicans

Washington, Dec. 25.—Advices from Berlin received here state that, in the Reichstag discussion over the smuggling of money for the Hohenzollerns into Holland, the question at issue became the comparative merits of the monarchy as opposed to the republic.

The scenes which followed have not been equaled for many weeks, the dispatches assert.

The Nationalists ond the People's Party stoutly defended the Hohenzollerns, who, they maintained, had given Germany all the good fortune which had been hers during the last 300 years, and Count Westarp asserted that "the conviction was growing daily in Germany that the proper State form was the monarchy."

Such statements as Westarp's, as well as defenses of a personal character of the members of the former imperial family, brought about the most violent recriminations from the parties of the Left, and finally the Chairman was compelled to remind the members that they were in the Reichstag and to declare that in future no general discussion on monarchy and republic would be permitted.

A diplomatic report states:

"Some justification appears to be on the side of the conservative parties in their claim that the Majority Socialists have made an unwarranted interference in a pending case for purposes of a purely partisan character, but it may at the same time be questioned whether the Government would have proceeded with vigor and dispatch had its hand not been forced by the parties of the Left."

The German press comment on the Reichstag debate is almost as violent as was the discussion itself, both conservatives and radicals claiming a victory. The Nationalist Deutsche Zietung declared "... the debate marked a "Hohenzollern day in the Reichstag," adding: "At last the patriotic parties had an opportunity to proclaim before the whole world their unshakable fidelity to their royal house and their firm adherence to the monarchy."

The view taken by the Nationalist Deutsche Tageszeitung is:

"The campaign of the Social Democrats against the Hohenzollern family has miserably failed. The very opposite was the result—a mighty and most impressive victory for the monarchist idea."

The organ of the Government and of the People's Party, the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, adopts the attitude that the Government was cognisant of the facts and was taking the necessary steps in the case, so that the only object of the Social Democrats could have been to exploit it for their own "sinister political ends." It continues:

"They (Social Democrats) know even better than we how greatly the German people, especially the proletarian classes, are longing for a change of regime, and they realize more than we how this longing for a re-established State authority hides to a great extent a rejuvenated faith in the efficiency of the monarchy. The guiding motive of the Social Democrats in this unmodified attack was doubtless their desire to kill at the very beginning this growing desire for the monarchy, which, as the people commence to feel, will alone bring about the reconstruction of Germany."

The Democratic journals join those of the Conservative parties in condemning the action of the Social Democrats as selfishly partisan, although the Democrats cannot approve of the reactionary desire for a restoration of the monarchy. The Majority Socialist papers claim a complete victory for their principles. Vorwarts holds that "the anger against the Social Democrats evidenced by the Nationalists proves that they consider it a great blow that their propaganda to keep the Hohenzollern saints' legend alive among the people was thus painfully disturbed and that the Social Democracy proved itself such a stanch defender of the idea of the republic."

The Socialist press charges that among the clents of the banking firm of Grusser, Philipson & Co., who smuggled money and property into Holland recently were the Hohenzollerns and other former German royalty and nobility, and these allegations were made the subject of an interpolation in the Reichstag, which precipitated the debate involving the monarchical and republican ideas.

The Minister of Finance replied that the Government had already started legal proceedings against the banking firm. He admitted that among the patrons of the firm were persons of royal and noble families, including several Hohenzollerns, but asserted that the ex-Kaiser and the members of his immediate family had done nothing contrary to the law. The smuggling of capital and property had actually taken place and the amount involved was much more than 100,000,000 marks. Dr. Wirth, the Finance Minister, declared that the law would take its full course without respect to persons.

Watson Wins Tientsin Hunt By Short Head

on the north, at a point rather distant from the road. The line crossed the Arsenal road on the near side of the Arsenal grounds.

The field of ten, small, considering the membership of the club, was made up of the best mounted and keenest hunters and the performance of the leaders was therefore all the more creditable.

The season is rapidly drawing to a close, and in many places the farmers have already begun plowing and sowing. The remarkably mild winter, and the native prediction of an early summer, will, undoubtedly, hasten the closure.

At the end of the hunt, Mrs. Burton presented the Lightweight Cup to Mr. Watson. There was no one qualified to win the heavyweight prize.

TEETHING WITHOUT TEARS

A NEW LIGHT ON BABY-BEARING

It is a recognised fact that Babies—and in fact all Children—need medicines of their own, and that most baby-medicines do more harm in the long run than good. Also great mistakes are often made in measuring doses for tiny patients. Baby's Own Tablets, the Canadian medicine for Children of all ages, meet every difficulty. They are guaranteed to be absolutely harmless and free from opiates. They are so soft that they fall into powder at very slight pressure, forming an ideal dose for Infants.

Baby's Own Tablets are pleasant to the taste; slightly laxative, comforting and digestive—a specific for feverishness, constipation, diarrhoea and worms. At the time of teething they act like magic, giving painless sleep and easy teething.

APPEAL FAILS IN SWATOW CASE

The appeal failed in the Swatow case recently argued in the British Supreme Court when the Full Court, consisting of Judge Skinner Turner and Mr. H. P. Wilkinson, yesterday confirmed the previous judgment.

The case was that of Sin Hong Chan against Low Long Yaur, the latter being the appellant. Mr. Reader Harris appeared for the respondent and Mr. Lipson Ward and Mr. Langley Smith for the appellant. The litigation arose out of a transaction in sugar between the plaintiff and the Ngee Guan Bank, of which the defendant was a partner. The chief ground of appeal was that the defendant has a defense to the action which he took at the commencement of the proceedings and sought to raise again on the day when judgment was given but that the course pursued throughout the case has prevented him from raising it.

Judgment was confirmed with interest to date and the taxed costs of the appeal to be paid by the defendant.

ABC

OUR correspondent and stockholding bank in San Francisco has a history which goes back to the pioneer days of California. It is the successor of two old English banks, the Anglo-California and the London, Paris and American Bank, both pioneers in the exchange banking field. The Anglo and London Paris National Bank, successor to the two older banks, took a leading position on the West Coast and now enjoys the distinction of being the largest national bank in point of deposits in any city west of Chicago and St. Louis.

This is one of the nine great American banks which are stockholders in the Asia Banking Corporation.

Exchange Market

Messrs. Maitland, Fearon and Brand write as follows in their exchange circular for week ending Wednesday, February 16.

Exchange.—Since our last circular published on 2nd inst. the London price of silver after rising to 37¾d. has receded to 34⅞d. i.e. ⅝d. higher than the closing rate on that date. Advices of silver still continue on the weak side. Our local rate for T/T on London has followed silver to 3/5d. and back again to 3/3d. Exports still remain dull and the banks generally are buyers of sterling and sellers of gold dollars probably in anticipation of a further rise in the New York/London cross-rate which is up to 3.92. Apart from these operations exchange business in connection with imports and exports has been small and the market closes steady.

WEATHER

The depression signaled this morning passing to the South of Nippon is now off N.E. of Nippon and is being felt all over Japan. Rough weather on both sides of Nippon and Yezo. Regular monsoon all along the China coast, very strong in the North, getting fresh in the South. Fine and cold weather.

An International Currency

Frederick Todd, secretary of the First Federal Foreign Banking Association, thinks times are ripe for the formation of a syndicate of responsible nations to adjust the world finances. He realises and acknowledges the dangers of such a plan but proposes guarantees. In the following editorial from the New York Annalist Mr. Todd sets forth his arguments.

THE old question about establishing some kind of an international currency—a paper money issued on the faith of a syndicate of nations—has again come up, with a much more serious reason than ever before for its being asked. Men from America, England and Holland, known to be among the most practical minded of the world's international bankers, within only a few weeks have urged the vital necessity of something of this kind as a constructive measure to help stabilise a very serious situation rapidly developing over the entire world.

There is ample authority for the opinion that some kind of sound international currency is mechanically feasible, not necessarily good the world over or dependent upon the good faith of every nation. For at least a quarter of a century men whose authority can hardly be questioned have said so. The reason why it has never been attempted is very plain. To budge the inertia of the world's system of international banking into so radical a change of machinery and method needs the force of as critical a necessity as today threatens us. No such situation has existed before in modern times. The previous situations were not such as would convince all men of farseeing economic vision that the necessity was so great as to warrant the change. The present system of settling international balances of trade and finance in gold with all its cumbersome drawbacks and occasional elements of positive danger and loss has what are sometime called "the virtues of its defects." In anything like a normal of business over the world the swing of international money exchange rates against any country which it can correct only by shipping gold means that the country is buying more than it can pay for in the products and services of its own industries and enterprises. Having to pay out gold or having to pay more in its own currency for the moneys of other countries, while somewhat painful, ordinarily brings correction of the unsound state of trade. No business concern could go along for more than a short time paying out real money because of deficiencies in its business operations. Nations stand toward each other as great business corporations. Under normal conditions they must pay as they go. If they persistently import more than they export and have not debts owing them that make up for the difference, it means that the people are extravagant beyond their means as a nation. When exchange goes against them as a result the currencies of such countries are worth less than par in trade. Imports cost more and exports bring less. Automatically this ought to discourage imports, and as it enables business men of other nations to buy cheaply of the products of these countries, it stimulates exports.

Therefore, if any international currency issued on credit were established that would obviate all rise and fall in international exchanges it would be obviously unsound. It would mean that instead of buying less and producing more unprogressive and extravagant peoples could go on buying indefinitely on credit. In the long run, nations can buy and sell only in products and services. There is not gold enough in the world to enable some "rich" country to go on paying for imports with it. If ever gold become so plentiful gold would become unsound money.

The greatest objection to any program of international currency is this danger. Credit is wonderful in its constructive possibilities, but it has "the defects of its virtues." The most conscientious brand of human nature is apt to give the enthusiasm of faith just a few feet too much rope. We are talking a lot about "inflation" nowadays, particularly about inflation of currency. Although there are nebulae among the ideas of some of the most Calvanistic of the economists who have made a religion of deflation (even if it damns half the business community) there undoubtedly is inflation. It is an abuse of the monetary credit of a nation that indulges in it, it is a tax upon the effort and earnings of people who really produce goods and business services in favor of people who get the paper money cheaply or on credit of some kind. If an international currency should be established in the present emergency the greatest danger and the hardest problem involved would probably be that of preventing an overissue, because of an overestimate of the credit deserts of needy nations, involving an inflation of the basic credit resources of international commerce, and an unwarrantable tax on the industrious people of the world for the benefit of countries suffering from popular extravagance, disorganisation of industry that only hardship can correct or economic prostration that calls for charity instead of business credit.

But the world is faced by a condition that calls for a maximum of effort, and for going to the utmost length in trying to find warrant for any measure that will help. Just as the dreadful necessities of war's emergency warranted so conservative a country of bankers as England to resort to deliberate inflation of credit and currency, so might we find it good business of the character of enlightened self-interest, if not enlightened international neighborliness, to risk some of the disadvantages of inflation. George E. Roberts, in the November circular of the National City Bank of New York, says that Europe's necessity of paying us the latest instalment of interest and principal on the war debt has brought results such that we could better have afforded to lose the money. Nobody who is in touch with the situation in Europe, around the world and in America can doubt that the United States could profitably invest an amount measured in billions of dollars to put Europe on its feet; it could afford to give to risk and even to lose hundreds of millions if that were done in an intelligent, constructive and prospectively successful attempt to re-establish international credit and exchange parities over the world.

There is nothing awfully mysterious about the methods that would have to be adopted. The facts, the machinery, all the principles that would have to be considered can be described to any shrewd business man. First, for a diagnosis of the situation before deciding on a remedy.

Briefly, several of the best and most responsible of the nations of Europe which converted all their industries, their man power, their trade and governmental credit to one heartrending effort to win the great war have tried for two years to reorganise manufacture and commerce on a going basis without success. Their industrial plants when peace came were at once put into process of reconversion to constructive peace purposes. But they needed enormous amounts of machinery and tools at the start, and then they wanted materials.

On the average manufacturing companies always have tied up in their assets from 15 to 30 percent of their capital in the form of raw materials. The war had exhausted these stocks abroad, and Europe, flushed with the hope of quick rehabilitation and quick return to the prosperity of work, stocked up, buying lavishly and seeming to think that price made little difference. Europe bought of everything and largely upon credit.

Then industrial reorganisation did not match the hopes and the purchases on credit indulged in. The Bolsheviki, radical revolutions and threatened revolutions, strikes, a fuel famine, a breakdown of transportation—the handicap upon a program of getting quickly upon a basis of general industry, employment and paying as you go was an impossible one. The imports bought at high prices are still unpaid for to the extent of billions of dollars. Much raw material is not yet manufactured.

The best of the Governments strained their credit and issued paper money in such volume as to make their currencies on the old basis of redeemability in gold worth only a fraction of par. Now comes along our "deflation program," and starts a world-wide drop in the prices of the heavy raw materials. Europe is already overbought, owes for the stocks she has, and finds prices falling. Europe stops buying from Australia, South America, South Africa and Asia. This intensifies the fall in prices and cuts off the buying power that exportation of these countries' productor has given them.

In normal times when a country even of the highest credit, industrialisation and wealth has a sudden drop in exports or increase in imports that is not compensated for by some financial development, the foreign exchanges move against it through the simple working of the machinery of banking. Usually such inequalities are small because the opportunities for speculation are attractive, and speculation in securities, futures on exchange, &c., takes the edge off exchange differences. But when the values of different nations' moneys are seriously questioned and on top of that prices are falling and a critical feeling develops, the insecurity of credit, the uncertainty of money values, and the adverse movement of exchange all begin a reaction upon each other that brings a "vicious downward spiral" of more uncertainty, more unbalancing of exchange, and finally, the disorganisation of commerce, the crumbling of world-wide credit and the disturbance of local business in the domestic affairs of all the countries of the world such as is now happening.

There are two very harmful factors in the situation that are now affecting our export trade so directly and so strongly that anybody can see how the business or employment of everybody in the country is menaced. One is the disorganisation of the credit facilities of the international banks, which is cutting down the whole movement of the world's commerce enormously. The other is the depression of all the rest of the world's money as compared with that of the United States in exchange transactions with all countries. On the average a foreign merchant must pay $1.88 for a dollar's worth of American goods—that is, he has to pay in his own national currency in order to get a draft for a dollar payable in New York what he would normally pay for a $1.88 draft. This is exactly equal to paying a higher price. No other nation's money costs as much except Japan's. The effect of this is obvious.

Italian money is worth only "19 cents on the dollar" in paying for American goods; Argentine money is worth "78 cents on the dollar," relatively speaking.

Now, what are we going to do about it? Shall we resign ourselves to await the slow process of the world and ourselves going through a period of depression, with production at a standstill and trade hardly moving, with unemployment, popular suffering and the danger that we shall breed Boishevism by cultivating the ground for it? The world and we shall pull through in some way, no doubt. But isn't the world in 1921 able to organise an intelligent management of the situation that will obviate the painful experience it must otherwise have?

There is almost unanimous consent among economic leaders and business men that the organisation of a great credit in the United States for the purpose of enabling Europe to buy food, materials, machinery, tools, railway supplies, perhaps coal and other "capital" goods to be used in getting industries and population at work, would redound to the stimulation of America's own waning prosperity. It is reiterated that formal investment of American capital abroad at this time would be especially helpful.

Why not also a syndicate of all the nations that can be regarded as sufficiently responsible in point of political stability and business standing to be depended upon to carry out in scrupulous good faith an international agreement by which an international currency trust shall be established, empowered to extend lines of monetary credit in which the nations that can sell anything shall all participate in financing the stabilisation of the monetary solvency of the nations that must for several years keep on buying in excess of their export sales?

Among a group of men of recognised authority on such subjects you would get a range of answers from a positive "no" to an enthusiastic "yes." We have learned economists who are unconstructively judicial in their habits of mind, and we have the dynamic type of men whose judgment is of the bold, constructive order. A very practical and successful banker once made the surprising remark in an offhand conversation that a good commercial banker was very rarely able to put over anything original and bold in business enterprise. Because the banker's daily work and training makes him a judge, and usually a very conservative judge, of other men's business, with a decided disposition to play safe at the expense of progress. Nearly all professional economists take a kind of "still-life" view of things; they work out a set of abstract principles which, under normal and average circumstances are absolutely correct, and they are apt to become inflexibly dogmatic over favorite principles.

"Big business" has developed another type of man of authoritative economic management, the dynamic organiser. He is an economist of executive type. Morgan, Hill and Harriman and big men of their type were as good economic theorists as ever lived, and a great deal more than that. They knew the details of business machinery, and it is well to keep in mind that the progress of the world is bringing great changes in the machinery of production, trade and finance. They knew the dynamic side of economics so concretely and practically and saw the world's machinery in motion so plainly that they were able to do things by fixing the machinery. It is the secret of the revolutionary things accomplished by organisation on a large scale. Most economic dogma is based on consideration of ordinary development, of the way things ordinarily go if left to themselves. The world's greatest authorities agreed that a war such as we have seen was impossible. The nations were sure to "exhaust themselves economically" in a month or two. It was all figured out. But it didn't happen. It didn't happen because vast national organisation of a machinery that they couldn't foresee was accomplished. And it was accomplished in spite of the participation of many notable blunderers.

In the light of what was done in the way of national and international organisation of special economic machinery for war's purposes, it would surely seem possible to do something by an association of nations for international economic safety now. Maybe the difficulties are greater and involve a much more skillfully put together machinery, for the organisation must work without any such autocratic control of everything as existed during the war. The brains and the executive ability called for will in all likelihood require much more careful and intelligent selection. And it would obviously be necessary to confine the association to a strictly business purpose. It could not be part of any maudlin plan of universal inclusiveness. It couldn't attempt a complete millennium. It would have to be confined to a group of nations that are politically responsible, that have well-founded expectations of economic recovery, and whose business communities have a reputation for honorable dealing. It could not include certain nations that have not found themselves politically and whose people, whether from the misfortune of tyrannical government heretofore, or innate racial inferiority, are individually unable to appreciate a high standard of business honor. It would be practical, however, to plan so that these people would share in the benefits without being depended upon for any great responsibilities.

Some such international organisation is not impossible if formed for the purpose of carrying out a fairly broad program of economic stabilisation and rehabilitation. It would be much easier if the organisation was expected to do nothing more than establish a sound and feasible international currency.

British Death Rate Falls

The annual report for 1919 of the Registrar General for England and Wales contains figures in the section dealing with infant deaths suggesting that Nature or Providence is trying to atone for war losses.

"While the time is hardly ripe yet to attempt an estimate of the total loss of births attributable to the war," says the report "possibly the number may be somewhere over half a million or very similar to that of deaths on active service."

By way of compensation the report shows fewer deaths now occurring in childhood. Death rates by far the lowest on record are shown for 1919 from measles and whooping cough, while the low death rate from diarrhea has only once been bettered. The death rate at most ages of life shows a tendency to decline except in the case of cancer. The excess of infant deaths in London over the average for the country which was noted as an exceptional feature of the 1917 and 1918 figures has disappeared.

Q.E.D.

A man who was negotiating for the purchase of a house, suggested that the price was a little "steep," but the owner, with an insinuating smile, replied: "Ah, but you overlook an important point. There is room to build another house in front."

"But if I do so I spoil this."

"Well, you needn't build it unless you want to."

"Then how do I get the advantage?

"Because you can build it if you wish."

"But don't I tell you that if I build another house I spoil this?"

"Then why build it?"

"I should have to build it to get the advantage."

"Then build it."

"But—"

"There's no 'but' about it—you can do just which you please; you have the advantage both ways; you are the master of the situation."

IMPS IN CHURCH

Choir-Boys have been described by one worried organist as "imps of the church." In "Diverting Stories of Church Life" by Mr. Leachman, it would seem that there was some justification for the term. He writes that it is a favorite habit among choir boys to while away the time during the sermon by the composition; on scraps of paper, of nonsense rhymes. Here is an example or two:

There were three young ladies of Birmingham,
I know a sad story concerning 'em:
They struck needles and pins
In the reverend shins
Of the bishop engaged in confirming 'em.

There was a young lady of Crewe,
Whose distress was quite painful to view;
First she leapt to her feet,
Then she hopped on the seat—
It was only a mouse in the pew.

She frowned on him and called him Mr.,
Because that night for fun he'd Kr.,
So, just for spite
That very night
The naughty Mr. Kr. Sr.

MY BEST STORY

Mr. Arthur Bouchier, the well known English actor, who recently appeared in "The Storm" a play which only ran long enough to spell bankruptcy tells his best joke as follows:

"The best joke I ever heard was when I discovered that I was taking myself seriously, and the most curious thing in my life was that I had not found it out before."

Crime And The Newspapers

By DR. PAUL BARTHOLOW

The opinion advanced in the annual report of the Police Commissioner of New York that scare headlines attract criminals raises a question that has been the subject of many scientific inquiries in which the problem is regarded from various standpoints, medical, psychological and social. Before the war, which put most theories into the shade, it was a favorite doctrine of professors of criminology that the publication of crime fostered the evil-doer's impulse to play a part in similar dramas; for, it is obvious that crime, however common, is so far out of the beaten track of the ordinary citizen's life, that its incidents have all the charms of a story and furnish a plot which is perennially interesting.

This tendency of crime to spread by its own momentum or repercussion is too well established to be disputed, but the precise causes of the phenomenon have been differently explained by criminologists, according to their own predilections for some particular branch of science. Some years ago in Paris there appeared a book, which has gained great authority, on "La Contagion du Meutre" by Mr. Paul Aubry. It took for its basis the incidence of "crime waves," of "epidemics of crime," particularly homicide. These waves have been observed in all countries, at different periods of history, and certainly before the scare head had been thought of, and, like epidemics of disease, they have been traced to the influence of four factors: suggestion, imitation, heredity, and, contagion. It is worth while, therefore, to revert to this by-gone doctrine, and observe the curious paradoxes to which it led.

According to this theory the criminal is made by his surroundings, by what he reads principally, or sees, either in the mind's eye or in reality. When he reads a headline in his paper his imagination is said to be violently arrested; actually he is a fascinated and powerless victim of the picture, and he next becomes the irresponsible protagonist in a new drama based on the outlines of the one he has fancied.

Pursuing this theory further, some noted specialists in criminology deduced the corollary that the publication of crime on the stage carried its morbid suggestion and aroused the evil spirit of imitation. They brought forward histories or diaries of criminals who had been hypnotised by great works of poetic art, like the Oedipus of Sophocles, or the Macbeth of Shakespeare. Logically, too, novels came under the ban, in particular the sensational stories of Wilkie Collins and other writers, although the criminals of fiction bear only a faint resemblance to those of real life. For example, it is not easy to see how Wilkie Collins's villain, Count Fosco, could be imitated.

This theory, which connects literature with crime, certainly presents difficulties, for it implies that crimes are essentially motiveless, which is rarely true, even of insane criminals. The exponents of the doctrine accordingly fell back upon the motive of the "thrill." In support of this view they cited Byron's description of his sensations at a triple execution in Italy. His first horror passed and he found that his sensibilities soon became blunted. If this be the effect of such spectacles, it was argued, capital punishments are wrong and ought to be abolished.

Criminologists stand on firmer ground when they assert that the devastating effect of crime spreads like war, or epidemics, or other unnatural states of society. But the difficulty remains of finding the medium or carrier of the contagion. There are those who would curtail the press reports of crime; there are others who believe that the publication of its ugliness and terror is the best corrective. Of late the opinion has become more common that the exposure in the press is one of the severest punishments, and, therefore, one of the most effectual deterrents.

Trouserless Home Greets Menalkas

Paris, Jan. 25.—Menalkas Duncan was returned by the police yesterday to the bosom of his family, but the return of the prodigal was not celebrated by any killing of the fatted calf. It was celebrated by a battle royal between the Duncan household some French newspaper men who were anxious to interview the erring Menalkas on his views on life as lived in trousers and on beefsteak, as against existence under the paternal roof in Grecian robes and on vegetables.

Menalkas, whose age is 15 and whose claims to Grecian beauty are real, disappeared from his home one evening a little more than a week ago. He had gone out to buy vegetables for the supper of the little colony of which Raymond Duncan, brother of Isadora Duncan, is the leader, when, mysteriously, he was spirited away. Two days later he was seen walking with a former member of the colony. He was clad no longer in flowing robes and sandals, but had his hair cut short and wore a neat gray suit of modern pattern.

For a week the police tried to locate him and yesterday they succeeded. They arrested the man with whom he had been seen, and he at once confessed that Menalkas was staying with him at his house near Paris. There the police found the boy and after investigation restored him to his father, at the same time provisionally releasing the man who had spirited him away.

The real tragedy, however, was then to begin. Menalkas, it appeared, did not wish to return home. He preferred the fleshpots of Egypt to the vegetables of the Grecian colony of the Rue Bonaparte, and infinitely he preferred his nice gray suit to the chlamys and sandals. The law, however, was against him, and so he had to return with his father.

Immediately afterward the house was besieged by newspaper men who wanted to interview the prodigal. His father refused. The newspaper men became insistent. Voices were raised in the home of Greek culture and even blows with canes were exchanged. The house where peaceful arts—hand-weaving and pottery—occupy the minds and hands of the colony became a bear garden. The police had to intervene, and the return of Menalkas has been marked by charge and countercharge by Mr. Duncan and the reporters, who have all been summoned to appear before a magistrate, who will no doubt content himself with a mild admonition to both parties.

Today quiet reigns, except in the soul of Menalkas, who hungers for the turkey and mincemeat which he had promised himself in celebration of his first modern Christmas.

BERLIN DANCER A SUICIDE

Beggared Spanish Beauty Toasts Gamblers In Poison Draught

Berlin, December 12.—In the suicide of the Spanish dancer, Malvina Vivian, Germany loses her most daring woman gambler, and Europe loses one of her most notorious and most artistic personalities.

Her last act was typical of her. Having put prussic acid in a glass of champagne, she toasted every one in the gambling hall of the Casino at Meran (in Italian Tyrol), drank, and then fell dead across a table, surrounded by merrymakers.

Malvina Vivian was a fisher girl whom a rich German bought for 1,000,000 pesos and took to Paris, where she was trained as a dancer. She later became a sensation in Berlin theaters. Her rich German friend provided her with a palace, and she became the richest and most prosperous artist in Germany. Gambling caused her downfall.

Last Spring she became involved in a burglary, having employed a professional Berlin thief in order to obtain jewels with which to pay off her gambling debts.

Freed, but still suspected, she went to Meran, where she lost 400,000 marks and all of her friends.

After her suicide the police closed the Meran Casino.

FAMINE VICTIMS SOMETIMES WILY

Relief Worker Tells Of Strategy Resorted To By Unworthy Ones

(Staff Correspondence)

Paot'ouchen, Chihli, February 11.—The work of distributing famine relief is an arduous one—for the ones who distribute and for those who receive.

To find out the really worthy is the task supreme. To get relief whether needed or not seems to be the ambition of everyone who inhabits the afflicted regions.

In Nanp'ihsien the people are very poor but very smart; no doubt their wits have been sharpened by their lifelong battle with the soil, and beaten in agriculture they shine in craft, not hand—but that of the heart. Standing on the station platform here were several of us "relievers" when up came a youth of ten years asking if we wouldn't relieve him and his family. We immediately began to investigate as we do all applicants. On cross examination we discovered that his claim for relief was that his father, a restaurant keeper, had contributed a sum of money for famine relief, and that therefore he felt entitled to a share of the relief when it had arrived. This was the attitude we found almost everywhere, only extended to those who hadn't contributed. If Wang and his family got help, Chang and his wanted help and felt considerably peeved if he didn't get it.

To obtain aid the people used every device they could think of. Sometimes in our investigating, the mother of the family would kotow in the doorway thus delaying the investigator, who was interested in knowing how much grain they had concealed and not in receiving empty honors. "There isn't a thing in that room. There is no use in looking," would exclaim the old woman, as you started to move the table placed there to obstruct the door. But in you went just the same and very likely found a big jar full of corn and an oil tin with 15 or 20 pounds of flour besides other stores.

PEOPLE ARE EVASIVE

Oftentimes we saw a pair of mill stones and a harness and fresh manure, but when we said, "You have a donkey," "Oh, no, indeed," would come the reply. But a big pile of fodder cut already for feeding would bring conviction to our hardened hearts and we beat a hasty retreat, while the head of the village explained as we went out the gate that he had to lead us in there lest he might offend the owners of the donkey, for they would feel slighted and might say unpleasant things to him afterward.

"But we have no time to spend in this way," we replied. "We want to see only those who are very poor." We found sacks full of grain hidden beneath bedding, jars of grain under piles of fuel, and once in a while a big jar would have chaff on top, but the stick of Kaoliang we carried, when struck through would strangely enough register on our unbelieving ears the sound of corn, and out we would go disgusted while our would be deceivers had nothing to say in reply to the angry flash in our eyes. Now and then we would find people pretending to get a meal in a room that was plainly not used ordinarilly, and when we called for the members of a family who were plainly in need, if they were not all present, some one would often push forward a child with the claim that he was the missing one. Sometimes they got away with it, but other times we saw through the ruse. When we did find a good store of grain we were met with: "Oh, that belongs to so-and-so. He keeps it here." But we rarely believed such tales.

PLAN OF PROCEDURE

Before beginning the investigation of a village we first inquired for the village head. He would take us to a room where we would ask him to give us the names of the submerged tenth in his village. Almost always he insisted that the submerged numbered far more than a tenth, but when we said we would first investigate ten families and see if they were really in desperate circumstances, and if he was not willing to do this, we would go on to some other village, that brought him around. After admonishing him to say nothing, no matter where we went, but just to let us use our eyes, we would start out.

When the village was finished, and we often wrote up more than a tenth if we found that our guide played fair with us. Then we wrote the tickets, providing for 20 catties of grain per month for a grown up and ten for each child. Then the happy recipients were called together and given their tickets. Once we wrote up a widow, but she didn't come to get her ticket. We wouldn't wait. On our way out of the village, the village head came rushing up with an old woman. "Here she is!" "What is your name?" "Chang." "Your maiden name?" "Ch'en." "Not right." "Oh, I forgot." But we kept the ticket which we cancelled.

Here and there we inquired whether there had been any deaths from starvation. Always it was only a few old people who had half frozen half starved. Many people had fled and some of these had returned. There was a great difference between villages, even those near together. I wrote up 33 families in one village of 48 homes, and in this village there was hardly an attempt to deceive. Sixty, they said, had left home. Many roofs of out-houses had been pulled down for fuel. Just across a dried up brook was another village where every family that I investigated was better off than any of those in the aforementioned village and the attempts at deceiving were very numerous.

Don't Jump at the Lowest Bid

YOU will not get the cheapest job just by giving the work to the lowest bidder—give it to the best, most responsible painter, even at a little higher price. And be sure to specify a high grade, standard paint like

Don't ask for "Emulsion"

You wouldn't go to a grocery and ask simply for some "soap"—you would name the brand of soap you require. There are many preparations called "emulsion," but there is only one SCOTT'S, and this is what you want. At the dispensary, therefore, ask for and insist on having SCOTT'S.

Since 1874 the Fishman Trademark on the Scott package has stood for something more than merely a name. In hospitals and consumptive sanitoria Scott's Emulsion is largely used, and recommended by doctors everywhere in cases of

SHORT SKIRTS HELD TO BE MORAL AID

Mrs. Sanger, Birth Control Advocate, Tells Men Some Things They Should Know

New York, Dec. 27.—Margaret E. Sanger, birth control advocate, took issue in an address yesterday with those who believe the present mode of woman's dress has lowered moral standards.

Speaking to an audience of men in Hunts Point Palace on the subject: "What Men Should Know," Mrs. Sanger declared short skirts and low necked dresses had raised the moral standard among men because the lure of draperies enveloping the eternal feminine had been removed.

"In accustoming man to view her as a whole woman has made a great step forward toward a higher plane of morality," Mrs. Sanger told her audience.

A question directed at the speaker by a man in the audience who wanted to know whether woman's clothes were not responsible for man's undue interest elicited a discussion of the whole clothes subject from Mrs. Sanger, who was in the midst of a dissertation on the mental attitude of woman toward marriage and child birth. She said:

SHORT SKIRT FOR COMFORT

"Down on the beach, where girls expose their limbs, there isn't half the mischief brewing in the minds of male spectators as one would find in the heads of chaps who used to hang around drug store corners waiting for a puff of wind. Down at the beach it is taken for granted women may expose themselves. Now that women are wearing knee-length skirts on the streets, men will soon take for granted that which they used to look at."

Mrs. Sanger characterised as ridiculous statements issued by some reformers that the female of the species is resorting to abbreviated clothing in order to catch a husband or a sweetheart.

"The ladies are not trying to do anything of the kind," she exclaimed. "It's merely a matter of comfort."

LAUGHS AT MEN

"Male psychologists who write treatises on women arouse Mrs. Sanger's mirth," she said.

"They have never told the truth," she declared. "They are ignorant of the true attitude of the gentler sex toward the problem of life."

Describing the attitude of women toward marriage and child birth, Mrs. Sanger said that most women approached marriage with fear. She said women should be given legislation under which it would be legal to instruct them in the means of birth control. Answering a question as to whether birth control legislation would not tend to devitalise the human race, she said that nations would raise stronger children.

Rival Philippines Politicians Are Nearing Disagreement

Controlling Party May Be Disrupted As Result Of New Issues Before Government

Rumors or a split between Manuel L. Quezon, president of the Philippines Senate, and Sergio Osmena, speaker of the House of Representatives, are current. Both are leaders in the dominant Nationalista party, and it is to the harmony between them that much of the success of the party is attributed. Both leaders, however, have declared that they are in complete accord on all important legislation now before the assembly, and it is also announced that they will refrain from attempting to influence President-elect Harding in the selection of the next Governor General of the Islands.

The effect of a rupture between the two leaders would have an important bearing on the politics of the Philippines. At present the Nationalista party is in supreme control, the opposition having only one senator and a few representatives, who are virtually powerless to affect legislation. The solid front which the Nationalista present is largely due to the "working agreement" between Quezon and Osmena, which has been kept by both despite a striking difference in the temperament of the two.

Mr. Quezon is generally regarded as the spokesman of the younger generation, including the students and progressives. He also has the support of most of the labor organisations, and it was owing to his position on the labor question that all attempts to admit Chinese as plantation workers in the south have been unsuccessful. He is brilliant, radical, and outspoken. He is an accomplished orator in both English and Spanish, and has a wide acquaintance with politicians in the United States as the result of his long service there in the past as resident commissioner of the Philippines.

Speaker Osmena, on the other hand, is known as a conservative, gaining his support largely from the substantial classes of the Filipinos. He rarely makes a speech or attends a public gathering outside of the regular sessions of the legislature. Although his approval of a measure is regarded as essential to its passage through the lower house, he makes it a rule never to comment on bills until they have been threshed out in committee and on the floor of the assembly. Unlike Senator Quezon, Osmena is not widely aquainted with the political situation in the United States, and in fact speaks English with difficulty.

Under the Harrison government, these two gentlemen have occupied the center of the Philippine stage and have admittedly held the balance of power. The pending change in administration has therefore furnished plenty of matter for speculation as to the future course of internal politics in the Philippines.

NUXATED IRON

A Shanghai resident tells us, unrequested, the results he obtained after a month's course of Nuxated Iron.

"After losing weight steadily for the greater part of 1920 my Doctor sent me to the Victoria Nursing Home, and after a thorough examination told me my lung was affected. This naturally alarmed me greatly as I am a married man and have one child. I took many different medicines prescribed by my Doctor, but all with no result. At my wife's suggestion I then began to take Nuxated Iron, as I was in such a state of mental worry, that I thought a course would do my nerves good. After the first week of taking Nuxated Iron I began to feel that I was eating better and could read a story without my attention wandering. As time went on, my weight increased, and my friends began to notice the difference in me. I am thoroughly convinced that Nuxated Iron is a wonderful nerve and blood builder, and am so pleased that instead of scoffing at Nuxated Iron, as I did when my wife first brought them home, I am recommending them to all my friends who are sick."

The above is what one of Shanghai's most popular men told us entirely unsolicited. He does not want us to publish his name, but expressed his wilingness to allow us to refer anyone to him.

WHAT IS

NUXATED IRON ?

It is getting more popular every day simply because it is not a secret "patent medicine" but is a compressed tablet of nerve restoring elements of medicine of known repute, and whose reputation has been made, not by advertising but by intrinsic value.

We will gladly give you the formula, so that you can submit same to your Doctor for his opinion. We cannot say fairer than that.

Obtainable at all Dispensaries.

Chicago Official Urges Promotion To Keep Stenographers

Chicago, Jan. 7.—Promotion of girl stenographers to keep them from marrying and retain their services was urged before the City Council Executive Committee by Assistant Health Commissioner Koehler yesterday.

"Do you mean to say that promoting a girl one rank will keep her from marriage?" asked Chairman Richert of the committee.

"Absolutely," replied Dr. Koehler. "The increased pay makes her independent and there is consequently no need for her to get married."

Some people are still persuaded, that AERATED WATERS are simply thirst quenchers, good for summer time. This is only a half-truth. They have a distinctive food value, and as such are worth many times their cost. Just think of the nutritive value of the sugar they contain, and the essences, which are all either tonic or stimulative in their action. But these ingredients must be pure, and of the very best quality. You are sure of getting these by using "Watson's High-grade AERATED WATERS."
